WASHED DOWN STREAM. Negro Stays in Vehicle and Floats to Shore-Horse Drowned.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

MITCHIELLS, August 21.—In attempting to cross Croaker's Rue, which was a very much swollen by beavy rains, at Cregor's Ford, Madison county, a team belonging to Mr. Jackson Eggborn, of Cuipleper, and dryon by a colored man and woman, was washed down stream. The buggy became detacled from the horses and floated to the bank, taking the woman with it. She clambored out and with her assistance the man also got out, but the horses floated on down stream for five miles and landed in Jim Hriker's hottom. Strauge to relate, only one horse was drowned, although when gound they were still coupled together by the breast yoke.

DEWEY'S BULLDOG HAS PASSED AWAY

Canine Was Companion in the Admiral's Daily Walks About Town.

About Town.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 21.—
Some on has said, "A man's truest friend is his dog," and if this be so, then Admiral George Dowey in the untimely death of "Bob," his brown builterrier, has lost his best friend. He was one of the most famous of American dogs.

"Bob," in company of his distinguished master, has been a familiar sight to hundreds of Washingtonians. For several years past their daily walks together have shown the deep affection between the two. The carrine had been left at a fashionable dog boarding house here during the absence of the Admiral, and Mrs. Dewey at Ritchfield Springs. "Boil" was solzed with hemorrhages Priday, and, notwithstanding he received the best of attention, died during the night best of attention, died during the night was a jolly Jack Tar. He lived the early years of his puppyhood on board the Dolphin, as the property of Mr. Moody, then Secretary of the Navy. His name there was "Billy Moody," In the spring of 1903, when Admiral Dewey went to the Carribean Sea for fleet maneuvers, he became much attached to the dog and the dog to him.

But "Boh" was not happy aboard ship, He was a landsman after all, and Captain Stoney, commander of the Dolphin, suggested to Mr. Moody that he be presented to Admiral Dewey.

Secretary Moody gladly consented, and the Admiral took "Bob," as he named him, into his home and heart. He became so much attached to "Bob" that all requests to enter him in prize shows were refused, fearing the risks of exposure Declared That King, Premier and Redmond Have Agreed on Home Rule.

Leader of the Irish Party Has Accepted the Plan of Self-Government for Island.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
PHILADELPHIA, August 21.—Home rule for Ireland, the dream of loyal Irishmen for centuries, is to be demanded at the next session of the British Parliament—the reform backed not alone by the Irish members, but by the Liberal government and the consent of King Edward VII.

Not only has this been decided upon, but the terms of the home rule bill have been tentatively settled, ithe conferring powers being the King, Premier, Sir Hienry Campbell-Bannerman, and John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Parliamentary party.

epoch-making measure. A communication has been received from one of the big leaders of the cause in Britain, who speaks with personal knowledge and authority. As the negotiations are necessarily secret thus far, his name is withheld.

Details of the Epoch-Making Bill.

Following are the details of the bill tentatively agreed upon by the King, the Premier and Mr. Redmond;
An Irlin 'Parliament composed exclusively of Irishmen, sitting in Dubclusively of irishmen, sitting in Dubiln.

Manhood suffrage in every borough.
Government aid for the revival of irish industries.

The new Home Rule Parliament to consist of one body.

Merely nominal veto power to be lodged in a council, such as that which has, but never exercises, the veto power in Canada.

Absolute right of the Irish Parliament to levy taxes for local uses.

Elimination of general taxation for the support of the theological seminary at Trinity College.

Conferences having as their object the preparation of a bill which will be accepted by both the English and the Irish people have been of almost daily occurrence since Parliament adjourned for the summer vacation. It is known that the summer vacation. It is known that the King has entrusted to Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman the execution of his ideas concerning home rule, and it is known also that those views are liberal and even generous. Transvaal Reform a Feeler. The constitution granted to the Transvali is now known to have been a feeler for the larger and more important I ish for the larger and more important risal problem.

Argument will be advanced by the Liborals, the members of the Labor party, who are firm allies of the Irish Nationalists, and by the Irish themselves, that if England can afford to grant home rule to a race that is less than a generation removed from armed opposition to the imperial power, it surely can afford to be fair to the nation from which it derives a great measure of its power, and which for a century has asked nothing more than the right to govern livelf as England's colonies are governed. than the right to govern each as East and's colonies are governed.

It is fitting that the first news of the agreement should come to Philadulphia, as it is from this city that the most gonerous support always has yone to Iroland. This was true when the "Black Death" gripped the land. It has since been true in the long struggle for Parliamentary, sensation.

Ore and Coke Into

Men Were Engaged in Dumping

PITTSBURG, August 21.—Three men are dead, two are in a serious condition, and nine others were rendered unconscious by a "low out of accumulated gas early to-day at the Eliza fornaces of the Jones and Laughlin's Steel Company, at Soho, this city.

The dead are:
GEORGE MARSLEY.
ANDERSW MARSLEY.

GEORGE MARSLEY.
ANDREW MARSLEY.
MICHAEL BOISE.
The men were engaged in dumping ore and coke into the furnace from the top, when there was an explored of accumulated gas. Flames shot up and enveloped Andrew Marsley in the deadly furnes and he fell unconscious. His fumes, and he fell unconscious. His brother, George, went to his assistance, but he, too, was overcome, and Michael Beise, who followed him, was also rendered insensible.

In spite of their realization that the same fate awaited them, each of the cloven men remaining, attempted to succor those first attacked, and every one in his turn was overcome. By this time the gas was shut off. The men were then rescued, but three died on the way to the hospital. The others were resuscitated, and all byt two, John Marsley and George Ola, who may die, were able to go home.

How He Killed Them.

Everybody calls Alfred J. Stofer, a well-known Washington character, "Major" Stofer, says the Cloveland Leader, "Where did you get your title, Stofer," Representative Littlefield, of Maine, once Representative Littlefield, of Maine, once asked him.

"Earned it, suh." Stofor replied, "killin' Yankees in the war."

"But, Stofer, you were not old enough to be a soldier.

"Who said I was a soldier, suh; who said I was a soldier? I was livin' in my native village of Culpeper, Va., suh, in those tryin times, and I was there I won glory for the sainted Confederate cause and myself killin' Yankees.

"But how did you kill them?"

"Killed them, by Indigestion, suh, by indigestion. I sold 'em apple ples and killed 'em by scores."

A Bishop Among Architects.

Bishop Vincent was praising at Chautauqua the Chautauqua architecture.

"Beautiful buildings." he said, "are a perennial delight, and the architects who give us them should be more highly honored and rewarded than they are.

"Whenever I look at our superb buildings here I think of what their architect once said to me. He said that a bishop employed one of his brothers in the designing and erection of a fine house. When the house was completed the bishop was well pleased with it, but when the architect's bill was presented to him he was not so well pleased.

"'My good brother architect,' he said. 'don't you think that your charges are too high? The yearly salaries of many of my curates don't equal the amount of this bill of your.

"'Yery likely not,' the architect replied, but I am not a curate but a bishop among architects." A Bishop Among Architects.
